

More on Immigration

In the article "The Disappearing Worker," you say we are disappearing because the new people don't want to work for $9 an hour, but the illegal Mexican will and that is the whole problem. I have been in this union for 35 years and steadily see them taking over. I have been out of work for two years because of it. I spoke with contractors about this and they told me they would rather pay them $9 an hour and make them redo it three times than to pay us $23 and do it right the first time. So until someone wakes up and sees what the real problem is then yes, we will disappear.

Robert Hooten Local 20 member, Dallas, Texas

I have heard very little from our labor leaders about what illegal immigration is doing to blue collar workers in America! Blue collar wages have in fact declined because of the massive influx of immigrants. Our nation will continue the downward spiral of real wages if this trend continues! I don't blame an impoverished person from another country wanting to come here to better one's life, however they are not my problem—my fellow country men and women are. Our health insurance is going through the roof because of this problem and the only people who benefit from a massive wave of migration of workers are companies large and small. Amnesty won't solve the wage stagnation. Deportation through attrition will and stronger labor laws allowing workers to unionize will! I wish the nation's labor leaders would poll their rank and file members every now and then. I feel some of them are clearly out of touch with their members on this issue!

Not on the Bandwagon

The proposal put forth by the IBEW in the article "IBEW Joins AEP for Global Warming Proposal," is one of the best ones I have seen so far. First, it doesn't make a headlong rush into a program that could be wrong in direction. Deliberate steps in a well thought out program are what usually get results. Secondly, if China and some of the other large industrialized countries don't live up to their Kyoto agreements, it puts those that do in a financial bind. All this said, I have yet to see convincing evidence that any warming that we are detecting has been brought on by our carbon-based emissions.

There are real pollution problems, particulates and fumes that cause real health problems, along with ground and water contamination that have to be stopped and corrected. Health care costs and the loss of buying power from stagnant benefits and wages are squeezing our members. Trying to curtail the carbon footprint may bury us financially. If Mother Nature is the cause of warming temperatures, (and not all glaciers are receding, some are getting bigger), trying to correct something that does not keep temperatures from warming wastes money that could be spent on health care and other programs to benefit our families.

s delegates gathered in Atlanta for the 2007 Membership Development Conference, I think everyone realized that, in a very short time, our Brotherhood has come to another intersection on our road to growth and opportunity.

Atlanta was not about speeches and theory. This conference was about nuts and bolts, about what works and what doesn't in building the IBEW. I have asked our delegates to share all of the materials that they bring back home from the conference with our members. And I encourage you to visit www.ibew.org to review our progress in organizing.

Since our convention, we have come out swinging. Our Membership Development structure is in place. The organizing staff has been hired. The administrative leadership is in place. The hard work-in all branches—has begun. We have implemented campaigns and tactics. And we are still learning and willing to try anything that increases our chances of success.

We are sharpening every aspect of our organization—better research, increased communications, comprehensive political mobilization, new and improved training, more education, stronger benefit planseverything that we do is geared to our future growth.

We are not talking about growth for growth's sake. Without it, everything that we and our founders worked for would

We have seen in construction the damage that a strong nonunion sector can do.

We have witnessed eroding standards in the utility industry. We know what happens when telecommunications companies pour resources into the nonunion segments of their companies that handle new technology while traditional jobs are phased out. We have seen manufacturing engage in the worst union busting of all—shipping work to developing nations. We've seen displacement in broadcasting and railroads due to technology and outsourcing. It's not new.

As union density has declined, so too has the ability of the middle class to maintain their job security, health care, pensions and upward mobility in North American society. But the IBEW is absolutely refusing to give up or give in.

Tactics and concepts that have proven successful in the Florida Initiative are now being put to use in the Carolinas, Texas, Tennessee, parts of Michigan and in Georgia. We are coming to nonunion workers and contractors with solutions, and it is proving to be good for all involved.

> We have come to another intersection. Straight ahead is a path of growth and opportunity. A turn in any other direction constitutes a waste of precious time, energy and resources. So where do we go?

> For both professional and industrial and construction organizing, the road to progress can only be traveled with greater involvement from IBEW local unions and individual members. This effort is not about me or Jon Walters, or the Vice Presidents. Nor is it about the International staff. We are seeing the beginnings of a rebuilt movement of working people in the United States.

> If our talk of a movement is to become more than just words, it means that more and more members are going to have to join the flow. Like a powerful river, we grow by moving forward, gathering strength from the contributions of many, until our power is great. If we fail to make progress, if we do not get the renewed strength of others joining us or participating, then we stagnate, and our Brotherhood is in jeopardy, just as it has been. Only this time, we may not get a second chance.

> In my years in the IBEW, I have seen our brothers and sisters rise time and time again to meet the challenge, whatever it may be. In Atlanta, we refined our battle plan.

Now that plan needs to be put to the test by every member and retiree who cares enough about the future of our union and working people to convince new men and women to join our ranks. Our union needs you now more than ever. Hie he financial house of cards known as the subprime housing market came crashing down this summer, putting tens of thousands across the U.S out of their homes and shattering the hopes of financial security for many more working families.

Investing in Our Future

The number of foreclosure filings could hit two million this year—a rate not seen since the height of the Great Depression. This is not only devastating to the families caught up in the subprime tangle, but to communities that have seen once bustling neighborhoods become marked with vacant and boarded up houses. The ripple effect from the real estate meltdown is being felt throughout the economy as a whole, raising the fear of a recession.

The unprecedented rise in housing prices over the past dozen years attracted real estate speculators who were willing to issue mortgages to almost anyone, whatever their financial and credit history, knowing that they could bundle and sell them off for an inflated profit. The game worked as long as housing prices kept rising, but as soon as the market cooled, it was homeowners who saw their property values decline and their adjustable rate mortgages rise above what they could afford.

This real estate mess is just another example of the shortsighted get-rich-quick mentality that has dominated Wall Street for too long. We have seen it before with the collapse of Enron and WorldCom. Big investors gamble with other people's money, who end up footing the bill when the bubble bursts. And there has been little accountability, either from Washington or from the corporate boardroom, that could put a hold on such risky and predatory behavior.

The seeming lack of responsibility of both corporate America and Capitol Hill has some of our members concerned—both about our nation's economic future and the security of their own retirement.

As a trustee of the National Electrical Benefit Fund—which is jointly administered by the IBEW and the National Electrical Contractors Association—providing our members with a secure retirement and investing the fund's assets wisely are my top priorities. And I'm happy to report that NEBF assets are not only secure but growing. It surpassed the $11 billion mark in 2006 and is averaging monthly benefit payments in excess of $57 million, while the National Electrical Annuity Plan, our $2 billion defined contribution plan, continues to provide competitive returns at low costs.

We aren't in this to make a quick dollar and we don't gamble with our members' money. We prudently invest in pension fund assets not only to secure the hard-earned retirement contributions of our members, but to create new opportunities in construction that will make our industry stronger and healthier.

Our investment strategy has been to build a portfolio composed of many different kinds of investments to protect against jumps and falls in any one part of the market while making smart investments in projects that also create jobs for our members and contractors and bring in profitable returns. Our in-house investment department and a pool of specialty managers help guide the trustees toward solid long-term investment opportunities.

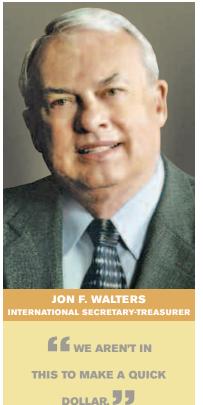

One example is the Project Millennium real estate and private capital investment initiative that has created IBEW jobs across the country—jobs that grow our Brotherhood and add to the number of plan contributors.

Speculative borrowing and high-risk investing without accountability created huge profits for a small handful but left tens of thousands more without pensions, health care and now their homes when the boom went bust. The IBEW-NECA model of responsible investing has guaranteed a comfortable retirement for more than a million members while creating good union jobs from Pittsburgh to Portland, Ore.

It's a model that Washington—now trying to clean up the subprime mortgage mess—should look at.

Famed Newspaper Globes No Longer New York Icons

New York City bid farewell to an iconic piece of city history when New York Local 3 members removed the last of The New York Times globes that have illuminated the front of the newspaper's old headquarters on 43rd Street for over a century.

"These globes have symbolized the newspaper for a long time," said Forest Electric employee Dan Bodurian.

Bodurian and co-worker Tom Leach removed more than 20 electrified globes, each 34 inches in diameter and painted with the Times logo, after the newspaper moved to its new offices on Eighth Avenue.

"We were very popular when we were removing the globes," Bodurian said. "A lot of people stopped to watch us take them down."

Some of the globes were auctioned off to Times employees; the rest were placed in the newspaper's archives.

Local 3 members have worked for the Times for nearly a century, with most of the electricians maintaining the paper's printing press. When the press was moved out of the Manhattan office to a separate facility in Queens in 1996, a majority of the electricians went with it. But both Bodurian and Leach remained at the main

...And Higher Education for All AFL-CIO Policy Supports Greater Access

Access to higher education is more important than ever in an increasing number of IBEW careers.

In early August, the AFL-CIO Executive Council, which includes IBEW International President Edwin D. Hill and Electrical Workers Minority Caucus President Robbie Sparks, passed a policy statement in support of advancing access to higher education for workers.

The statement noted several critical factors in today's economy: the share of the work force with a bachelor's degree doubled from the 1960's to the 1990's; the hourly earnings of college graduates averaged 4.5 percent more than high school graduates; unemployment for those with bachelor's degrees was 2 percent compared to high school graduates, whose rate hovers at 4 percent. Despite these facts, state and local funding for higher education

EXTREMELY HOT, BUT "EXTREME MAKEOVER" APPEARANCE A SUCCESS

A 20-man Salem, Ore., Local 280 volunteer crew knew working on a one-week house rebuild for the popular "Extreme Makeover" ABC show would be intense. But they didn't know they would be working through extreme heat too. Temperatures in the small town of Lewisburg hit 102 degrees as they labored to wire a 4,300-square-foot house in the span of a few days in early July.

"It was done in one week, from the start of demolition of the old house to when the family moves in," said Local 280 President Jerry Fletcher.

The only problem came when a concrete glitch delayed the electricians' rough-in by a critical nine hours. To get the job done, the IBEW members worked alongside plumbers and carpenters in very close quarters while 70 drywall installers stood by to erect the walls.

The program, featuring the house built for the Byers family, aired in October. Daughter Janessa "Boey" is fighting recurring cancer.

"It was fun and it was also a very good moment for the Brotherhood of Local 280, which showed our pride and commitment," Fletcher said. "The best part was seeing a fine family get a new home."

The Local 280 members who worked on the project were Brandon Crawford, Jayson East, Travis Frick, Brandon King, Rudy Lancaster, Carmen Latella, Barry Mattes, Ron Maxson, David McFarland, John Rogers, Rocky Sloan, Jason Stephens, Les Weaver, Rob Williams, Adam Zurcher, Chad Zurcher, Greg Creal, Denny Ellis and retirees Al Lockner and Ned Goldman. M&W Electric's Mike Weaver and Dave McFarlane also helped.

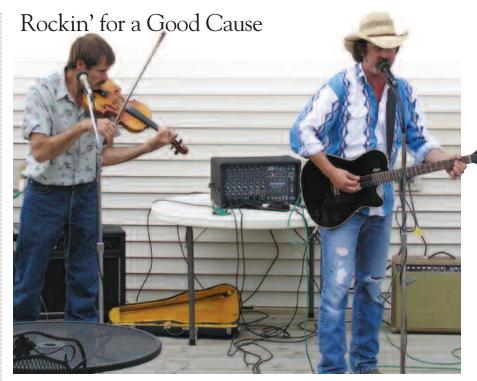

has reached its lowest level in 25 years.

"Workers must be able to compete in a 'knowledge-based' workplace," says AFL-CIO President John J. Sweeney.

Full-time workers with families have special higher education access needs in addition to affordability, says Susan Schurman, National Labor College President Emeritus. "Programs need to include innovative distance and online programming, and public spending needs to recognize that a marketplace that requires highly educated workers must budget for lifelong learning access for all workers," says Schurman.

The NLC, founded by the AFL-CIO in 1969, is the only accredited college in the world exclusively dedicated to educating union members, leaders, activists and staff.

"The AFL-CIO's policy statement is timely. Access to higher education is a bread and butter issue and deserves to be followed up with concrete action," says IBEW Director of Construction Organizing Kirk Brungard, who also serves as vice president of the NLC Alumni Association. IBEW members have a long tradition of seeking advanced educational opportunities.

Stevens Point, Wisc., Local 388's very own country duo, the Saddletramps, took to the stage to help raise more than $12,000 for second-year apprentice Katie Jo Legner, 26, injured while helping a friend build a house. Band members Don Karl, on the fiddle, and Mike Botwinski were among the many Local 388 members who were wishing Legner well. Legner, who sustained a head injury, is back in class, but not yet back on the job, said Local 388 Press Secretary Guy LePage. "We got more than 120 electricians on that project and there's not a one of them who wouldn't want to work along-side her," he said. "We're hoping to get her back soon."

Unearthing the Stone: Ohio Members Help Masons Recover Lodge Cornerstone

Members and leaders of Cincinnati, Ohio, Local 212 have helped the local Masons recover the cornerstone of a building in nearby Walnut Hills that had once provided a home to both organizations.

Raymond Clark, a Mason, was traveling through Ohio photographing current Masonic lodges and former lodges when he heard about the Walnut Hills building, which had its cornerstone laid in 1922. Financial difficulties had caused the Masons to leave the property in 1946. Later, IBEW Local 212 moved in.

While making plans to photograph the building, Clark spoke to Local 212 Assistant Business Agent Chris Fridel, who informed him that the building had been sold and was scheduled for demolition soon.

After some investigating by Fridel, the Masonic lodge's cornerstone was found in the rear of the building, even though there had been many additions over the years. With the help of Local 212's leaders, the Masons recovered the cornerstone in March.

In April, the Masons hosted a dinner and ceremony at their Cincinnati lodge to welcome back the cornerstone. Presiding over the ceremony was Mike Hines, a Local 212 member and the Masons Grand Master in Ohio. Local 212 Business Manager Chuck Seymour, President Ted Babel and other members of the local were present.

IBEW BIDS FAREWELL TO LONGTIME SECRETARY

Nancy Cleary, executive secretary to International President Edwin D. Hill and International Secretary-Treasurer Jon F. Walters, retired on October 1 after a 51-year career at the International Office of the IBEW.

"Officers and members throughout the Brotherhood know the indispensable role Nancy has played in making this union run professionally and smoothly for more than half a century," President Hill said. "She has become an IBEW institution, and we will miss her professionalism and her warmth and generosity of spirit."

In 1956 Cleary started her career at the IBEW. Born in Grantsville, Md., Cleary was encouraged to enter the labor movement by her brother, who was an organizer with the International Association of Machinists. She put in a job application through Office and Professional Employees International Union Local 2, which represents employees at the IBEW and other international unions in the Washington, D.C. area, and was hired by the IBEW as a typist in 1956.

While working, she went to night school at the Washington School for Secretaries, earning an associate degree in 1959. She became secretary for the Manufacturing and Organizing Department—as it was known at the time—and in 1972 was appointed secretary to the International Executive Council.

In 1976, Ralph Leigon was appointed International Secretary, and took Cleary with him. She served under six International Secretaries (a position that was combined with the International Treasurer in 1998) and three International Presidents.

Cleary's day-to-day responsibilities in her 51 years have been extensive. "I have to wear a lot of hats," Cleary said. "I've done everything from fixing breakfast to speaking with the office of the President of the United States."

One of her most important duties was assisting new executive officers. "All of them came straight from the field, so I had to familiarize them on how the office works," Cleary said.

In the last half a century, she has witnessed the remarkable change in technology that has revolutionized professional office work at the IBEW. "When I first got here, we were using mechanical typewriters," Cleary said. "Thanks to computers and the Internet, what used to take me a week, now takes me an hour."

For Cleary, serving the IBEW's membership remains one of the highlights of her career. "I had the chance to interact with members in every part of the union," Cleary said. "I've seen the union grow in new and progressive ways."

Cleary will remain in Washington D.C. She is looking forward to spending more time with her husband of 44 years, Jim. She also plans to spend more time with her two children and their spouses and her two grandchildren.

The IBEW wishes Nancy Cleary a long, healthy and well-deserved retirement.

Chicago IBEW Members Record Desert Concert in Israel

Chicago Local 1220 member Tom Siegel has done some tough shoots before, having filmed documentaries in Vietnam, South Africa and Mexico. But his recent trip to Israel to shoot a concert in the shadows of an ancient desert fortress proved to be his toughest job yet.

"We were right in the middle of the desert, almost an hour away from any major towns," said Siegel, who works for PBS affiliate WTTW. Siegel, along with three other IBEW members, joined an international team to film the musical special "David Broza at Masada." Broza, one of Israel's top folk musicians, was accompanied by special guests Jackson Browne and Shawn Colvin for the sunrise concert at the base of one of Israel's most historic sites.

The crew had to deal with 120-degree Fahrenheit heat and sandstorms with winds reaching upwards of 75 miles per hour. "You could only work outside for 15 minutes at a time before the heat got to be too much," Siegel said. The crew also had to keep sand out of the cameras and recording equipment and keep the wind from blowing over tripods.

While visually stunning, producing a TV special in the middle of such an inhospitable climate proved to be a major challenge. "This was truly a miracle in the desert, given that there were no catastrophic equipment failures," Siegel said.

The production crew helped keep things cool by building a series of airconditioned tents to house the control and editing rooms, but there was no getting away from the ever-present sandstorms. "You would try to seal up the tents as much as possible but you would come in the morning and still find an inch of sand coating everything," Siegel said.

After a week of setting up, they were ready to record. To have a sunrise as the backdrop, the concert started at 3 a.m.

Despite the tough conditions, the crew was happy with the results. "I have never seen such beautiful footage," said Executive Producer Nicolette Ferri.

WITW Vice President of Engineering Ron Yergovich credits the skill and experience of the IBEW crew members for the successful shoot. "I have worked with Tom and these guys for a long time, and know and trust the quality work they do," Yergovich said.

The special was aired in Chicago in August and will be shown nationwide on PBS around Christmas.

Masada is a group of ancient fortresses and palaces set among the mountains overlooking the Dead Sea. Built by the King Herod the Great in 40 B.C., it is where Jewish rebels held out against invading Roman soldiers around 70 A.D before committing mass suicide rather than surrender.

Chicago Local 1220 members Derek Young, left, and Tom Siegel set up high-definition cameras in 120 F heat.

New Organizing Program Takes On Industrial, Professional Sector

Faced with the stark choice between the promise of future growth and the certainty of continued decline, delegates to the 37th IBEW Convention in Cleveland listened carefully to the arguments of the International Officers and made a difficult

"Your future, the future of your local union and the future of the IBEW will depend on the leadership you'll demonstrate today," said Secretary-Treasurer Jon Walters on Sept. 12, 2006. "By your bold action here in Cleveland, you can propel our great union into an exciting new era of expansion and prosperity."

Via a voice vote, they overwhelmingly chose a per capita increase and the funding of an ambitious organizing program designed to reverse declining membership rolls in the non-construction branches of the Brotherhood.

A year later, with the organizing council structure taking shape, that decision is bearing fruit.

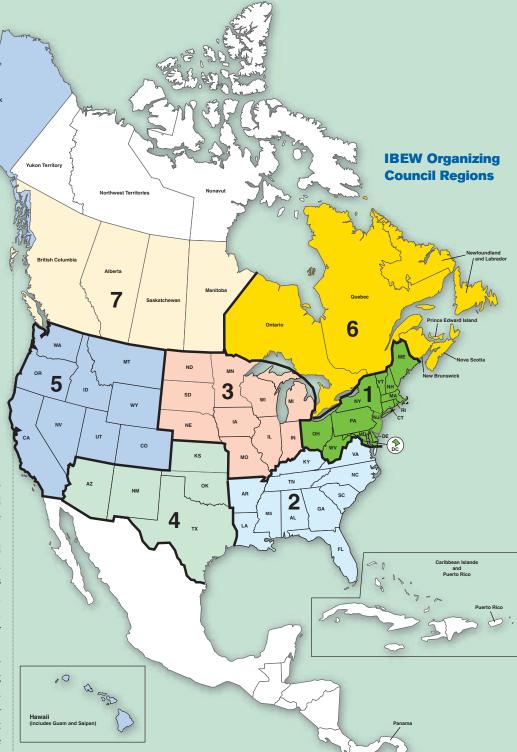

The new program infuses the union with organizers and field staff to carry out campaigns with coordination from the Membership Development Department, vice presidents and local unions. Organizers hard at work on drives across the country say that without the injection of resources and commitment, their efforts would not have been possible.

"The best thing about this is that somebody who understands organizing is able to come in when the local gets a lead and work with them to help move it along," said Region 5 Lead Organizer Bob Brock. "Locals get strapped for organizing new members because they are servicing current members."

Under the plan, the United States and Canada have been divided into seven regions headed by regional coordinators and split into smaller "councils," which, with the help of field staff and locals, identify targets and provide support for campaigns.

Much of the year since the Convention has been spent hiring and putting the structure into place, but the main work of the councils—organizing—is well underway. Over the first nine months of the program, the IBEW won 19 National Labor Relations Board elections, a winning average of just over 50 percent, said Professional and Industrial Organizing Director Brian Ahakuelo.

"We are in the infant stages of the program, but there is no doubt in my mind that we will get to 75 percent," Ahakuelo said. "If we continue on this path of growth, we won't have to break doors down. People will want to join."

Internal Efforts Win Workers

A Region 2 internal campaign has brought more than 200 new members into the bargaining unit at Howard Industries in Laurel, Miss., a manufacturer of distribution transformers. Before the campaign started in June, the IBEW represented about 800 people in a potential unit of more than 2,500. Ahakuelo attributes the IBEW's success to hiring a bilingual organizer who can communicate with Latino members.

"A lot of them don't know anything about unions or what they are for, or how membership can improve benefits, working conditions and wages," said International Lead Organizer Maria Gonzales, who attributes the IBEW's successful efforts to Laurel Local 1317 Business Manager Clarence Larkin and stewards James Chancellor and Mike Gavin. "And some are concerned because unions are corrupt in other countries."

Old-fashioned shift-change organizing is working for Region 2 and Pascagoula, Miss., Local 733 organizers at the Avondale shipyard, where an internal campaign has netted more than 60 new members since late July.

Region 2 Lead Organizer Kenny Lett said they could sign up as many as 175 more new members. The workers in the unit are electricians employed by Northup Grumman who wire electronic, navigation, radar, power generation, computer and defense equipment on the ships built at Avondale.

Late in the afternoon at the gate, Pascagoula, Miss., Local 733 shop stewards and volunteers and organizers await the second shift coming on and the first shift coming off the job, said Lett, who is working with Local 733 Business Manager Merland Farria and organizers J.P. Mergenschroer, Bert Heno, Daryl Smith and C.J. Gautreaux. "We set up tables, pass out T-shirts and hats, answer questions, and if they have questions, we give them answers," he said. "It's catching on. We're getting at least five or six a day every time we set up the table."

J.P. Mergenschroer attributes the 20 percent increase in membership to persuasion by members. "We have some strong union members over there," he said.

Coordination Key To 10-state Campaign

The Northern Natural Gas campaign covers 10 states and involves organizers in regions 3 and 4. It started last fall after workers in Iowa contacted Des Moines Local 499. When organizers collected a majority of cards and petitioned the NLRB for an election, the board expanded the unit to include the whole company. The resulting campaign for the approximately 450 operational and service technicians has mushroomed into a massive undertaking that would not have been possible before the renewed organizing push.

Organizers in Iowa, Wisconsin, Nebraska, Minnesota, Michigan, South Dakota, Kansas, Oklahoma and Texas have been meeting with small groups of Northern Natural Gas employees.

"Before, we wouldn't have had any way of handling a campaign that covered three vice presidential districts and two organizing regions," said Region 3 Coordinator C.J. King. "We have figured out what we need to do, and if we give it a little time, it will bear fruit."

Campaigns for Utility Workers Lead Region 4

In Region 4, which includes Arizona, Kansas, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas, the biggest campaign is at the Texas utility TXU, where a 500-member unit voted in favor of the IBEW in December. Now organizers are working on a group of 200 field service representatives worried about outsourcing and pay. Some workers have been without a raise for as many as six years, said Region 4 Coordinator Tim Bowden.

In Stillwater, Okla., the majority of a group of nearly 60 municipal electrical workers has signed authorization cards. The state Public Employees Relations Board recognized the workers as an IBEW unit in mid-September.

"Where before I could only do one campaign at a time, now we can do multiple campaigns and your chances of victory are going to be greater," Bowden said. "I'm glad they did this. We're moving in the right direction."

Region 5 Lead Organizer Bob Brock

Region 5 Efforts Net Far-flung Members

Region 5 Coordinator Brock has notched several victories across Montana in the past year, including telecommunications workers, lottery technicians and others. Recently he has been working to assist nearly 120 telephone co-op workers who are members of an in-house association affiliate with the IBEW.

Brock said having a team with sole responsibility for organizing makes a difference. "Before, a lead would come in and the local would follow up on it, but the organizer would get called back to work on something else," Brock said. "In a campaign, you have to be there all the time or it will just fizzle out."

Region 5 Lead Organizer Chris Tuck has spent a good deal of the last several years trying to organize a zinc mine north of the Arctic Circle in Alaska with mixed success. He said that recent research assistance on Red Dog employer Teck Cominco and native owner Nana Corp. from the International Office has been a key organizing tool.

"It's helped us educate the community on how lucrative that mine is for the area and how there is no excuse for not paying workers more and treating them better," said Tuck, who is helping nearly 100 new members negotiate their first contract now while seeking to gain the trust of the approximately 250 others eligible to join. He credited organizer Charlie Brown, a former employee at the mine, for helping move things forward.

Canadian efforts get into gear

Organizers in western Canada have their sights set on the dominant broadband cable, digital phone and high speed Internet provider, Shaw Communications. Region 7 Coordinator Gerald Larson said although the IBEW represents technicians at two units in British Columbia, there are more than 1,000 potential members at Shaw in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia. Larson said in Alberta, they are also targeting 1,500 possible members at a utility and in British Columbia, they are looking to organize calls centers and manufacturers.

"For so many years, I've heard the constant theme from so many locals that we don't have the resources to do an effective job at organizing," Larson said. "The help is here. This is our opportunity to do this."

Region 6 Coordinator William Martindale, who is responsible for eastern Canada, including Ontario, Quebec and the Maritimes, said he is targeting power stations, fire alarm technicians and communications workers. A winning percentage of just over 50 percent means organizers have had to take their share of losses. A particularly heartbreaking defeat came in late June at Progress Energy Carolinas. The IBEW had petitioned for a unit of workers at one plant in North Carolina where workers had shown interest in representation. But an NLRB ruling that forced two other Progress-owned nuclear facilities into the unit diluted the pool of workers. Despite hard work by organizers and a push from the International Office, the loss was decisive.

"I'm learning from my mistakes," said organizer King. "It's painful, but the lessons will all be to our benefit."

Ahakuelo has been attending IBEW progress meetings and conferences delivering a presentation on the Brotherhood's efforts. He said people are motivated and enthusiastic.

"We will win on the ground, with the help of organizers that we have in the field, local unions and guidance and direction from Washington," he said. "The table has been set, and we have started to see positive things happening."

Boston Area Trades Council Builds on Organizing Success

Five Boston building trades unions are launching an organizing offensive aimed at recruiting a new wave of skilled workers at hospitals, high-rise buildings, colleges and other facilities. With over 30 years of organizing success behind them, including over 1,200 members at 22 workplaces, the Area Trades Council is continuing its winning ways.

In May, the building trades group—which includes Boston IBEW Local 103, Carpenters, Painters and Allied Trades, Plumbers and Gasfitters and the Operating Engineers—picked up new members at the Collonnade Hotel. The group includes skilled workers, mostly immigrants from Bosnia, Serbia, Puerto Rico, Algeria and other countries, who were sick of low pay and being assigned to unskilled tasks, like delivering towels and bathrobes to rooms.

"It's a good feeling when you visit with workers at an organizing site and know that there are three or four other organizers by your side who know the issues facing other trades in the building," says Bill Corley, Local 103 organizer. Over 250 members have joined Local 103 through council organizing campaigns.

Boston's experience with multi-trade organizing campaigns goes back to the early 1970's, when four unions, calling themselves the Maintenance Trades Council, successfully challenged Harvard University and Boston Children's Hospital to recognize bargaining units of skilled workers.

After several years of coordinating bargaining on contracts, the joint effort added the Painters in the mid-1990's and reconstituted itself as the Area Trades Council to mount an organizing campaign at Brigham and Women's Hospital, a teaching affiliate of Harvard. The council applied for and won National Labor Relations Board recognition as a certified collective bargaining agent.

"I had always seen the clout that comes when unions work together on politics," says Dick Monks, vice president of Operating Engineers Local 877, the council's only full-time organizer. But, says Monks, it took some organizing victories to more clearly realize the power of solidarity in organizing.

Every trade gets phone calls from individual workers in facilities like hospitals and universities who want to join unions, says Monks. But without a structure like the council, they are often steered to the nearest construction site. The starting point for the council is that "we're in this together," he says. While a lot of the work performed in their workplaces straddles two trades, jurisdictional feuds are few. The council holds monthly shop stewards meetings.

"We talk about how specific problems have been handled in different institutions so that we can learn from each other," says Frank Vallesio, a 30-year Local 103 member and shop steward at Children's Hospital.

When contractors come in from other places, they are amazed at the caliber of training of Area Trades Council members compared to nonunion shops, says Vallesio. Children's Hospital contributes up to $3,000 for members to attend night classes at the Local 103 apprenticeship training center and more for one-day seminars. The success of the Area Trades "boils down to respect for our work and our working conditions, where no one can come in and dictate over us," says Vallesio, who has assisted organizing campaigns at Beth Israel Hospital and Baptist Hospital.

Sharing resources is at the foundation of the trades' accomplishments. Unions split costs for literature and meetings, but meet one-on-one with prospective members of their own trade to answer particular concerns and questions.

Area Trades Council members make a valuable contribution to Local 103, says Business Manager Mike Monahan. "In addition to spreading the local's influence, they are our eyes and ears, looking out for nonunion contractors on nights and weekends."

Each union appoints two organizers to the council, which elects a president to serve a three-year term. Member organizations pay a per capita based upon the percentage of workers represented. "It's been working fantastically," says Corley, who meets each month with other organizers to review progress and divide responsibility for contract bargaining.

Cooperation with other labor organizations, including affiliates of the AFL-CIO and the Change to Win federation, has boosted the council's effectiveness. Collonade's attorneys tried to convince the Service Employees, which represents skilled workers at other hotels, to raid the council's campaign, but SEIU refused.

The SEIU and the Massachusetts Nurses Association have major concentrations at 10,000-member Massachusetts General Hospital where skilled workers are still unorganized, says Corley. In exchange for SEIU's assistance, the council is supporting the service workers' campaign to organize janitors and house-keeping employees by introducing its organizers to council members and shop stewards.

Among the targets for the next wave of Area Trades Council organizing are workplaces under the Service Contract Act, which covers employees of federal government contractors. The council also hopes to convince one of Boston's main property management firms to recognize new bargaining units among trades that maintain the high-rises.

IBEN Taps Into Power of the Solution

California residents are increasingly turning to the sun for their energy needs, and members of Los Angeles Local 11 are working to make sure that IBEW journeymen will be ready to provide the manpower to harness the fastest growing source of energy in the state.

"Solar is really the wave of the future, and we need to make sure the IBEW will be the preferred provider of skilled solar workers," said Los Angeles Local 11 Business Manager Marvin Kropke.

Growing concerns about climate change and rising oil prices, in addition to large state incentives for homes and businesses for switching to clean and renewable sources of energy, have made California the leading producer of solar power in nation.

"Over 70 percent of solar is happening right here," said Bernie Kotlier, director of Green Building Solutions for the Los Angeles chapter of Labor Management Cooperation Committee, a joint effort of National Electrical Contractors Association of Southern California and Los Angeles Local 11.

In 2006, California installed more than 70 megawatts of solar power, over double the amount from the previous year. By 2010, projections are the state will install 10 times that amount.

And with last summer's signing into law of the Million Roofs Initiative by Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger (R), a bill that offers further tax incentives to reach the state's goal of a million solar roofs by 2018, the future of the energy industry in California is with the sun.

However, many renewable energy advocates are concerned that there are not enough skilled solar workers to keep up with the growing demand. Currently there are 1,400 solar installers in California, but they will need at least 17,000 by 2015, Kotlier said.

"A lot of people throughout the state are asking how you grow 40 percent more solar installers every year," he said. For Local 11, the answer is simple. "You don't need to train a separate work force, when you already have a highly trained pool of electricians who need minimal training to become qualified solar installers," said Local 11 Assistant Business Manager Kim Craft.

Local 11 and NECA began hosting three-day solar installation trainings last December at the Electrical Training Institute of Southern California, a joint training facility run by the IBEW and NECA. The 144,000-square-foot facility is home to one of the largest privately owned solar power generating systems in the United States. The institute is the perfect location to introduce IBEW journeymen to the world of photovoltaics, and the staff has assembled a team of experts from around the country to run the trainings.

"We knew this was a big growth opportunity for us and that we needed to get started," Kropke said.

Trainees learned everything—from choosing the best place on a roof to put a panel to studying how solar power will affect electrical codes. So far, more than 1,300 members and contractors in Southern California have gone through the three-day session.

The Solar Power Road Show Goes on Tour

Word of the training quickly spread throughout California, and after many requests, Local 11 and NECA set up the "solar power road show" to bring the workshop to every part of the state. In June, a dozen instructors filled a 40-foot trailer with training equipment and sample solar panels and headed north.

It is not easy to convince hard-working IBEW members to give up a weekend in the middle of the summer. But when Sacra(Continued on page 19)

BLUE-GREEN COALITION PLANTS THE SEEDS OF JOB GROWTH IN OAKLAND AND DETROIT

As a founding member of the Apollo Alliance, the IBEW is committed to finding new opportunities to create union jobs in the growing "green" economy.

Dublin, Calif., Local 595 is working with the Oakland chapter of the Apollo Alliance to make green technology a means to rebuild a union work force in Oakland.

While the late '90s dot-com boom that hit the Bay Area created plenty of good paying white-collar positions, it passed over Oakland's low-income communities, said Local 595 Business Manager Victor Uno. "The Oakland Apollo Alliance wants to partner with the community so that the green tech revolution creates good jobs and opportunities for all."

The city used to have a large unionized blue-collar manufacturing base, but deindustrialization largely decimated it, leaving many inner-city youth—mostly minorities—with little hope of ever finding full-time work. More than 10 percent of the population lives in poverty.

The Apollo Alliance is a national coalition of labor unions, businesses and environmentalists committed to promoting renewable and clean forms of energy and creating "green collar" union jobs in the process.

The Oakland chapter of the Apollo Alliance is an initiative of a local community activist organization, the Ella Baker Center for Human Rights, and Local 595. "The Ella Baker center reached out to us because they appreciated the role that organized labor has played in the fight for economic and social justice," Uno said.

The Oakland chapter's top priority was passing the "Green Jobs Corps" initiative, under which the city would provide seed money for job training programs—targeted at unemployed youth—in emerging "green" sectors, like recycling, transport repair, energy conservation retrofitting and construction. After months of lobbying and several rallies in front of city hall, the council voted to fund the $250,000 initiative in June. "These are dignified manual labor jobs with good wages, enough to raise a family," said lan Kim, Ella Baker Center Policy Director.

"This is what the labor movement stands for: creating strong communities and strong opportunities," Uno said.

The Oakland Apollo Alliance is now focusing on bringing green jobs to the nation by supporting the Green Jobs Act of 2007. The bill, introduced by Rep. Hilda Solis (D-Calif.) and Rep. John Tierney (D-Mass.), will provide $125 million a year for green jobs training. The bill was passed by the House in August and is under consideration in the Senate.

In Detroit, Local 58 has used its partnership with the state Apollo Alliance to create opportunities to train IBEW members in solar installation. The decline of the auto industry and the high unemployment rate has made creating new jobs not only good for the environment, but vital to restarting the state's economy.

"As a business manager in a state that has been struggling, promoting renewable energy might be a way to turn our economy around and create work for our members," said Local 58 Business Manager Joseph Abdoo.

Local 58 and the Michigan Alliance are also looking at ways to expand into wind power, and they are lobbying the state legislature for funding to develop renewable energy.

"Renewable energy technologies could create thousands of jobs for Michigan workers while dramatically improving our environment," said David Gard of the Michigan Environmental Council.

mento Local 340 Business Manager A.C. Steelman sponsored a stop for the training in early August, it was filled to capacity.

Over 200 members and contractors showed up. "Not one attendee left during the three days," Steelman said. "Our members know that the jobs are out there, and they want to be ready for them."

In late August, the road show stopped in San Luis Obispo. "Most of our members knew very little about solar power, even though it's becoming a big deal around here," said San Luis Obispo Local 639 Business Manager Hank Lewis.

Nearly 175 journeymen and contractors attended. "After only two days, our members were ready to do the work," Lewis said.

Local 11's training recently attracted national attention when Brad Collins, the executive director of the American Solar Energy Society, met Kotlier and Craft promoting it at a trade show in Las Vegas.

Well aware of the demand for qualified installers, Collins was looking for speakers for ASES's annual conference that could make the connection between the growing solar power industry and creating good-paying "green collar" jobs. "The IBEW is a pivotal player in the new energy economy and I knew that we needed to hear their perspective," Collins said.

Collins invited both Kotlier and Craft to speak at ASES's annual conference in Cleveland, where they ended up speaking to an audience of more than 400.

"They were a big hit," said Bill Spratley, the executive director of Green Ohio. "They were effective union spokesmen because they focused on the issue of jobs and how the IBEW can play a role in filling the need for qualified solar installers."

> "Attendees thought the IBEW was natural for a panel like this, because almost no else out there is doing the kind of training the union is doing," Craft said.

> California is not alone in the move to make the IBEW a leader in solar energy installation. Solar incentives are offered in 35 states, so many locals are already preparing for the growth of solar power in their own areas.

> Detroit Local 58, working through the Michigan Apollo Alliance (see sidebar), launched a new solar energy training program in 2006 that will have the capacity to train more than 100 workers at a time in the installation and repair of photovoltaic systems, while Jersey City, N.J., Local 164 has begun offering solar training at its center in Paramus.

The National Joint Apprenticeship and Training Committee announced in July the publication of the first comprehensive guide to the installation of both commercial and residential solar energy systems, which can be incorporated into local trainings and apprenticeship programs.

The California road show is planning another tour of the state in the fall.

"There is so much work coming down the road, if we don't start doing it, we will be left out," Lewis said.

The Columbia is North America's largest hydroelectric power-producing river. The immense power is harnessed in its largest dams, but Columbia's dams also temper the river's brawn, protecting communities from flooding when its waters rise. And they provide irrigation that has turned thousands of miles of once-parched surroundings into farmland. Reservoirs filled by the dams welcome millions of visitors each year for fishing and recreation.

None of the Columbia's 14 dams, and 18 more on its tributaries, would have been built, and few will be refurbished, without the construction skills of IBEW journeymen and apprentices from jurisdictions spanning the continent. Today, members of Vancouver, B.C., Local 258, Nelson, B.C., Local 1003 and Seattle Local 77 support the operation of flood-control dams and power generation. On the dams of the Columbia, the prowess of nature and the power of trade unionism come together.

"The entire Pacific Northwest-from the average citizen to the Microsofts and the big growers—depends upon reliable water power, and most of it is unionmade," says Local 77 Business Representative John Trumble.

WOODY GUTHRIE-SINGING THE COLUMBIA'S PRAISE

In 1941, the Bonneville Power Administration hired workingclass troubadour Woody Guthrie for $266 per month to write songs promoting the concept of public power. In one month, he wrote 26 songs, including "Grand Coulee Dam."

Now in Washington and Oregon you can hear the factories hum, Making chrome and making manganese and light aluminum, And there roars the flying fortress now to fight for Uncle Sam, Spawned upon the King Columbia by the big Grand Coulee Dam.

Local 77 member Marge Arsenault, power systems control craftsman, at the relay panel in the 550-kilovolt control house at Grand Coulee Dam.

The Legendary Grand Coulee Dam

The Grand Coulee Dam, 90 miles from Spokane in Central Washington, was built during the Great Depression and played a pivotal role in powering manufacturing production during World War II. Grand Coulee is the fourth biggest hydropower producer in the world and one of the largest concrete structures on earth. Grand Coulee has the capacity to produce 7,000 megawatts, six times the power required by the City of Seattle. The structure's 12 million cubic yards of concrete could build a sidewalk four feet wide and four inches thick and wrap it twice around the equator.

Sixty-eight members of Local 77 operate the Grand Coulee for the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation. The local's participation in the Columbia Basin Trades Council goes back to 1949. Grand Coulee's power is marketed by the Bonneville Power Administration, an agency of the U.S. Department of Energy.

The guts of hydroelectric power, and the focus of countless electrical manhours, are its turbines and generators. Water from the dam flows downhill, where it enters a large pipe which funnels it onto a water wheel, the turbine, causing it to spin. The turbine is connected to a generator by a shaft. As the rotor in the generator spins, electrons flow out as electricity. The electricity passes through a system of controlling switches, voltage changing transformers, and miles of wire before it is delivered to Turbines, which can stand up to 75 feet and weigh 350 tons, are built to last 45-50 years with small modifications and ongoing maintenance by IBEW crews. To replace them, crews disassemble the worn units and assemble the new ones, moving the parts into place at times using two home, industry and businesses.

overhead cranes. Generator rotors equal the turbine assembly in weight.

"It's the pride of people working here that keeps the high integrity of the equipment," says Mike Popelier, a 22-year Grand Coulee veteran who has served as Local 77's steward and president of the 12-union trades council. Because the dam is surrounded by federal and Indian reservation land, many union members travel long distances to work in one of its three power plants. They maintain pump generators and 65,000-horsepower pumps, which send water to a nearby lake at a rate of 1,600 cubic feet per second. Canals from reservoirs fed by Grand Coulee irrigate almost 700,000 acres of land.

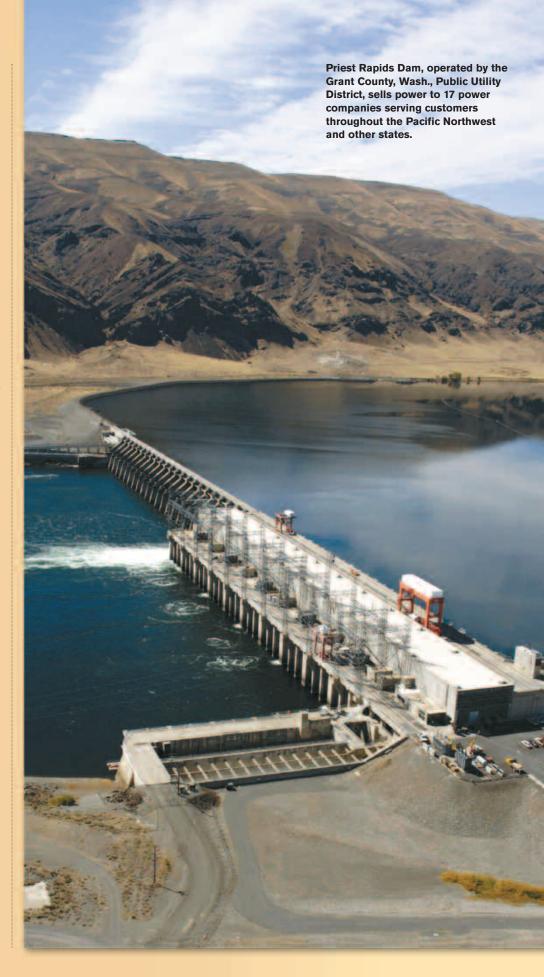

While tough bargaining has won decent wages and benefits, work at Grand Coulee has its frustrations. "Our facilities were like brand new copper pennies when I started here. You could eat off the power plants' terrazzo floors," says Popelier. In the mid-1990's, the federal government reduced preventive maintenance and conditions deteriorated. Five years ago, the trades council agreed to merge several former jobs into one mechanical journeyman classification, but the transition was poorly managed and maintenance suffered temporarily.

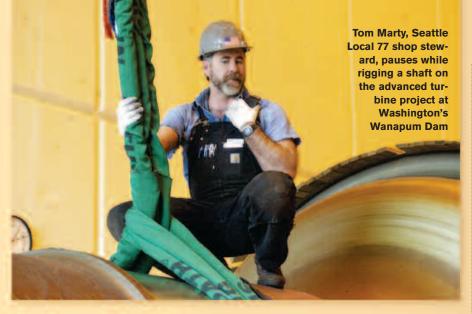

"It's hard not to care about what happens here," says Popelier, who is mentoring younger members to get involved in the union and work with new plant management to establish an apprenticeship program to replace dozens of members who are approaching retirement.

Priest Rapids, Wanapum, Wells, Rocky Reach and Rock Island Dams

More than 300 members of Seattle Local 77 work on the smaller Priest Rapids, Wanapum, Wells, Rocky Reach and Rock Island dams on the mid-Columbia in Washington. The dams, built between 1933 and 1967, are all operated by county public utility districts. They generate enough electricity to run major cities, leaving ample overflow to be purchased by users in California and other Western states.

When some of the dams were built, fish ladders were installed to allow salmon (Continued on next page) and other species to move upstream to spawn without facing punishing flows of water. Not all of the Columbia's dams have fish ladders, so salmon no longer get up to Canada on the Columbia. New regulations in both countries now call for fish bypass systems and other measures to protect fisheries.

Hydromechanics, hydroelectricians, linemen and other members of Seattle Local 77 are currently at work on the turbine replacements and installation of a fish bypass system.

IBEW crews at Priest Rapids and Wanapum, managed by Grant County Public Utility District, employ 179 members of Local 77. They are currently on the third of 10 turbine replacements at Wanapum and still have 10 more planned at Priest Rapids. Some of the turbine replacements take up to nine months. When completed, the modern turbines will reduce energy costs by three percent. Two crews, consisting of six to eight mechanics, one to five electricians and support staff, are working five 10-hour shifts each week on the replacement project.

Pat Oldham, a mechanical engineer on the Wanapum turbine-replacement project, says, "Our bottom line is that we want the dams to operate efficiently." He commends the IBEW for "good skill levels and good results."

British Columbia's Dams

Complex negotiations between the U.S. and Canada resulted in the Columbia River Treaty of 1964. The U.S. desperately wanted dams in Canada that could both store water for power plants south of the border and prevent flooding from spring flows of melting snow and ice that often measured in excess of 120,000 cubic feet per second. In return, Canada bargained for a share of the hydroelectric power that was being produced in the States to serve its growing population.

Hundreds of IBEW members in Canada work on dams on and near the Columbia River. Duncan and Keenleyside storage dams and Mica, a powergenerating dam with an underground power house, were built under the treaty and employ Local 258 members. The amount of water sent downriver is determined by the treaty and daily contact between both entities.

Other Local 258 members work at Revelstoke Dam and Generating Stations which, like Mica, produces power for BC Hydro, a government corporation. Revelstoke is just beginning a project to install a new generating unit. Members of Local 1003 and several other locals on both sides of the border work on hydropower projects on the Columbia's uppermost tributary, the Kootenay River and on Kootenay Lake.

Leon Arishenkoff, a shop steward and executive board member of Local 258, is a 33-year veteran of BC Hydro with most of his service at Keeleyside Dam. Arishenkoff is one of five lock keepers covered by his local's collective bargaining agreement. They maintain the only navigable lock in Western Canada at Keenleyside. The lock was built to allow logs to be floated past the dam daily to a downriver sawmill and pulp operation. Arishenkoff recalls the controversy that preceded the Columbia River Treaty, when some Canadians protested being displaced from lands that were flooded to create dams.

"If you look at the greater good," says Arishenkoff, the treaty has been a winner for both nations. Besides good-paying union jobs, he says, the dams provide incredible agricultural opportunities in the United States and thousands of megawatts of clean power for both countries. Like Mike Popelier at Grand Coulee, Arishenkoff is concerned about a shortage of apprentices and other trained workers who not only construct, operate and maintain dams and generating stations, but, who are involved in the construction and maintenance of the transmission and distribution lines. It's just another challenge that must be mastered to keep the Columbia's power rolling on.

HYDROPOWER: MORE POWER, LESS POLLUTION

- Hydropower accounts for 30 times more electric generation than other renewable sources of electricity such as wind and solar power.
- Hydroelectric power provides 10 to 13 percent of the electricity in the United States and 14 percent worldwide.
- Hydroelectric power provides over 97 percent of the electricity in the province of British Columbia.
- The power source displaces more than 500 million barrels of oil or 120 million tons of coal required for generating the same amount of energy.
- Hydropower reduces annual carbon dioxide emissions by 250 million tons. 🖩

Talk show star David Letterman peers into the audience in New York's Ed Sullivan Theatre and a 72-year-old man raises his hand to ask for some advice.

"My boss is a real jerk and I want to quit my job," he says. Letterman asks how long the man has worked for his employer. "About 14 years," the man answers. Raising questions about a tight job market and the man's age, Letterman suggests that maybe it would be best to work things out with the boss, rather than quit.

The man stands up and reluctantly agrees. Then while the audience laughs, he strides up to a camera, puts on his headphones and gets back to work as one of "The Late Show with David Letterman's" most trusted technical staffers.

Meet Dave Dorsett, a veteran shtick player and Emmy Award-winning videographer whose resume includes the "CBS Evening News" with Walter Cronkite and Dan Rather and 53 years as a member of New York Local 1212.

"I'm still up for this job and love coming to work," said Dorsett, who recalled seeing co-workers in tears when they were forced to retire at 65, before the law prevented employers from such action.

"Dave is one of the nicest, most charismatic people I have ever worked with," says Steven Kaufman, a 14-year cameraman and utility on the show. "He's an inspiration. I'm 45 and sometimes think he's in better shape for this work than I am."

people can come in on the bottom floor of an industry when it is just starting to blossom?" asks Dorsett. Money was tight after his father died; a brother had been killed in World War II. At age 18, Dorsett, a New Jersey native, took a TV technology course in New York City—long before there were colleges of communications. After blanketing East Coast stations with his resume, Dorsett was hired by WLWA in Atlanta, where he learned from radio veterans. "I knew enough to listen to the old-timers who had come out of radio," he says.

Atlanta was a rough place for unions, but a year after he was hired Dorsett joined an IBEW organizing drive at his station. After a heated and close election, the union won and Dorsett became a member of Local 1193. When a coworker with whom he shared a house moved up in the union ranks, Dorsett took the financial secretary's job in Local 1193, "collecting dues in my sock drawer."

"I owe everything I have to the union," says Dorsett, who left Atlanta for New York City in 1960 for a job at MGM Telestudios, where he again got in on the ground floor producing videotapes, cutting and splicing long before today's advanced editing equipment was invented.

In 1965, Dorsett accepted a job offer from CBS to work behind the camera on live productions of "The Secret Storm," a soap opera. Then the newsroom called.

"I had great respect and awe for Walter Cronkite," says Dorsett, who was promoted to work full time on the renowned "CBS Evening News." He served as a steward for New York City Local 1212, convincing news directors not to forget the needs of his members for meal and rest breaks, especially during fast-breaking news coverage.

Dorsett stayed with the evening news when Dan Rather took over. "He was a great guy," says Dorsett, who said Rather was "approachable, pleasant and respectful of the technical crews." Dorsett's career wasn't all hard news.

There were three Winter Olympics broadcasts, Super Bowls, overtime work on "NFL Today" and more work on soap operas like "As the World Turns."

George Rothweiler, who has worked with Dorsett for 33 years, recalls the 1982 Super Bowl in Pontiac, Mich., when CBS was short one cameraman. Dorsett, who was working inside on "NFL Today" was asked to go outside in the bitter cold to cover the event. "He suited up and took it on, never complaining, like so many of us probably would have," says Rothweiler.

Letterman's technical director, Tim Kennedy, says his famous boss says it best when he calls Dorsett the "dean of cameramen." Like Kaufman and Rothweiler, Kennedy praises Dorsett for his perpetual enthusiasm and his collegiality in welcoming pages and newcomers to the show. "All of the talent, including the news anchors that he works with, warm up to him," says Kennedy. "He's just a solid guy with a big heart."

"I remember walking by Studio 50, the Ed Sullivan Theatre, dreaming of working there," says Dorsett. He jumped at the chance to work with Letterman when the show opened in 1993 in the newly-renovated building that was once home to Arthur Godfrey, Jackie Gleason and Garry Moore. "Now I don't walk by, I come in," he said.

Dorsett, who leaves his home in Cranford, N.J., by bus four days a week to join dozens of IBEW members pulling 10-hour shifts on the show. Most of the program is rehearsed for several hours, he says, but when the show goes live and Letterman sees an opportunity to ad lib, he goes with it. "Letterman's a genius and we follow his lead," says Dorsett."

When the show's writers pencil Dorsett into the script, he brings his best slap-stick or straight man. The cameraman has even achieved some notoriety, including being featured on a "You Tube" clip. Dorsett's head, in earphones, fills the screen as he apologizes to his wife for forgetting Valentine's Day for the fourth straight year. Then, in stark contrast to his professional reputation, he loudly admonishes her not to "climb my back" for forgetting. After Dorsett returns to his camera, Letterman tells him that he was one day too early, Valentine's Day hadn't come yet. "Oh crap," says Dorsett.

Once, in the middle of the show, Dorsett dropped his camera shot to the floor. "What gives," said Letterman, live. Dorsett said, "Oh, sorry. It was so quiet in here I assumed the show was over."

While visiting his vacation home in Fort Myers, Fla., Dorsett received a call on his answering machine from a woman offering a hot tip on the stock market. It was part of a well-publicized scam to artificially drive up prices of some stocks so that others could sell at a healthy profit. Dorsett was upset that scam artists were preying upon Floridians after a major hurricane. He gave an interview to the New York Post which placed his photo on page three, describing him as "outraged." On that night's show, Letterman continually impersonated an "outraged" Dave Dorsett.

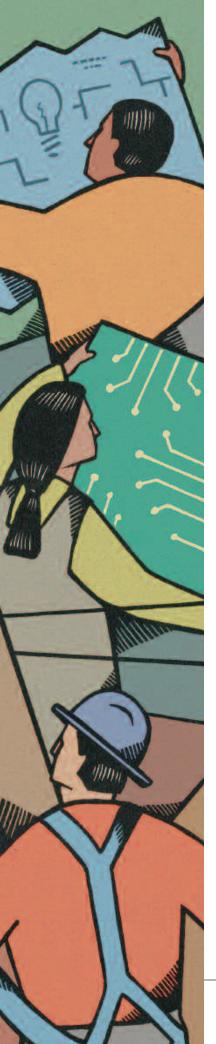

"If a job becomes a task or drudgery, it's time to quit," says Dorsett. But, he is still having fun. College students who work as pages on the show want to hear stories about Cronkite and Rather. "It's amusing when all of their knowledge comes out of textbooks," says Dorsett.

As for the parade of well-known guests on the show, "we leave them alone," he says. "We're here to work, not pretend that we are their best buddies." And, once again, new technologies are blooming.

Dorsett was pleased when he heard that CBS and IBEW negotiated last year to bring some of the new work into the bargaining unit. It's just another sign of progress in contrast to "uglier days" when he recalls CBS coming into negotiations with a huge book of demands and forcing broadcast employees out on strike during Christmas.

When Letterman takes his vacations, Dorsett follows suit, heading to Florida where he tends to his garden or spends time with his children and grandchildren.

"Dave Dorsett isn't just a fine and respected union member, says Keith Morris, business manager of New York Local 1212. "He's a wonderful human being."

Group Travels

RETIREES CLUB OF L.U. 26, WASHINGTON, DC—The Retirees Club took their first group bus trip ever to Charlestown, WV, for a day at the races and slots, and also enjoyed a delicious buffet lunch. All this for $20 per person.

So when we scheduled our second bus trip to the Annapolis Pennsylvania Dutch (Amish) Market, word of our good times had traveled the circuit so to speak. The price was a little higher, but this time we made two stops. First at the market where you could watch the women make outrageous creamfilled cookies, buy an ice cream cone, or just relax and sit in one of the hand-crafted rocking chairs.

The second stop was at the Kentmoor Restaurant for lunch. The Kentmoor lies on Kent Island on the Eastern Shore of Maryland and overlooks the Chesapeake Bay. There we enjoyed a sumptuous lunch of Mayland Crab soup, hard-shelled crabs, fried chicken and more. We also strolled outside to enjoy the view of the harbor. Before boarding the bus to return, we took some group photos to remind us of our day of fun and friendship together.

At press time we were looking forward to a September trip—our first group cruise to Bermuda. Some 24 Retirees Club members, union members and their families planned to join us for this trip. We hope to have more travels to report in future articles.

35th Anniversary Picnic

RETIRES CLUB OF L.U. 58, DETROIT, MI—At a picnic held Aug. 22, the Association of Retirees, presented a testimonial to Association Pres. John Ahern with a plaque honoring our retirees club, reportedly the first chartered retirees association in the IBEW.

Camaraderie among the members was the highlight of the day. Prayers were requested for several members, including Association Sec. Delores Barrett, who had major surgery, and Bro. Jerry Migdalewicz. It seems only yesterday when Jerry was my journeyman and we worked on the All-State job for

Bro. Mott recovered well from heart surgery and is again tending to club functions. At this writing, Bro. Mott reported that the September trip to Memphis, TN, was full and would depart as scheduled. He announced that next year's excursion will probably be in Vermont in the fall. Mark your calendars!

We thank all members who attended the anniversary celebration. A Christmas party luncheon will be held in December. There will be no club function in November due to the Thanksgiving holiday. May God bless you all. Remember, our union is only as strong as its members. Buy and live union.

Active Summer Season

RETIREES CLUB OF L.U. 99, PROVIDENCE, RI—Now that summer has passed, we look forward to the fall and winter seasons.

Local 99 retirees had a very active summer even though we do not meet in July or August. We enjoyed attending two PawSox baseball games at McCoy Stadium as well as two fishing trips organized by Bro. Bob Beardwood. We thank Bro. Beardwood for his efforts in making the trips a success. We also enjoyed the annual clambake, which was run by Bro. Mike D'Amico.

Your club president and recording secretary attended the annual Alliance For Retired Americans Conference held in September in Washington, D.C. Our club is a charter member of the Alliance. The annual conference is held to bring all retirees up to date regarding efforts to privatize Social Security and Medicare, efforts that we oppose.

We are saddened to report that three of our beloved brothers passed away over the summer: Bros. Thomas Dicki, Al Tagliaferri and George Mollo, who was a former assistant business manager. May they rest in peace.

Our prayers and thoughts are with all retirees who are not in the best of health.

Happy Thanksgiving and keep the spirit of Brotherhood strong! RAY GERMERSHAUSEN, PRES.

RETIREES CLUB OF L.U. 103, BOSTON, MA—The Retirees Club, at this summer writing, is involved in a community electrical project involving a closed church and the City of Quincy, MA. As this project neared completion, the citizens of Quincy profusely expressed their appreciation, in the local newspapers, for the NECA-IBEW volunteer joint venture and for our community spirit.

Brothers Honored

RETIREES CLUB OF L.U. 134, CHICAGO, IL—We recently honored our 50-plus years of service brothers. Congratulations to our brothers for adding another five years to their record. They were all in good spirits. The luncheon was great and we all had a good time.

Where has our summer gone? Our club is doing fine. We have lots of programs to finish the year—a cruise on Lake Michigan, theatre dates, guest speakers, a golf outing and, last, our corned beef dinner in December. So come on down and enjoy the meetings before the snow comes. We will later have the results from the golf outing, held in remembrance of John Cummins. Have a good and healthy year. See you in 2008.

RETIREES CLUB OF L.U. 150, WAUKEGAN, IL—At the August meeting, Art Bandman brought his classic 1955 Plymouth and our "classic" members posed in front of it (see photo).

It's been a busy summer. We went to Lake Geneva for a cruise and then for a very informative talk at Yerkes Observatory, and lunch at an Irish pub. The next trip was to Chicago "places unseen." We had a fabulous step-on tour guide and enjoyed lunch at Chicago Joes. Later we had an overnight trip to White Pines State Park, which began with a luncheon followed by a play, quite funny. The afternoon was free, ours to enjoy at our log cabins or

Pearl Harbor Survivor

RETIREES CLUB OF L.U. 714, MINOT, ND—IBEW Local 714 is proud to have a Pearl Harbor survivor participate in the Retirees Club. The union would like to recognize retired Bro. Clem Lonski of Jamestown, ND, for his past service in the U.S. Navy and as an IBEW electrician. A native of Kensal, ND, Clem joined the Navy on Jan. 2, 1941, because, he says, there were no jobs available and he thought he'd be drafted. While in the Navy, he studied to become an electrician.

Clem says he clearly remembers the surprise attack on the U.S. naval base at Pearl Harbor, Oahu, Hawaii. The Dec. 7, 1941, attack against the U.S. Pacific Fleet spurred the United States into entering World War II the following day and officially started the Pacific War.

Following his military service, Clem worked as an electrician in North Dakota. He traveled quite a bit and worked extensively in Bismarck, Mandan and Minot. Most of the jobs he worked on in North Dakota involved the Snake Creek Pumping Station, the Minute Man missile projects, ABM projects, the Minot AFB base and various power houses in the local's jurisdiction. Clem retired in 1983 and savs he now stays busy taking care of his vard and house.

UNION SPORTSMEN TELEVISION

As host of TRCP's Life In The Open, Ken Barrett has been with the TRCP since its inception and also serves as a senior staff writer.. Ken grew up in the Hudson Valley of New York, hunting grouse, woodcock and deer, and fishing for bass and trout. He's resided in Montana for almost twentyyears, and when not writing, he can be found fishing for trout on the Madison, Yellowstone or Gallatin Rivers or hunting upland birds on the state's eastern prairies or elk in its mountains.

Ken, a graduate of Cornell University, has been a teacher, a non-profit development director, executive director, and board chairman. When writing for the TRCP, he draws on a lifetime of hunting and fishing experience. Like most hunters and anglers, Ken's always ready with a story and is delighted to be working with people who share his passions and commitment to "Guaranteeing Us all A Place to Hunt and Fish."

It's open season for sportsmen as TRCP's Life in the Open returns to VERSUS for season 3 starting Friday, October 5th at 7pm (ET).

Join host Ken Barrett each week as he transports you from your living room into the wild to pursue fast-flying birds, stealthy big game and aggressive fish in inspiring destinations across the United States and beyond.

You won't want to miss Ken's knockdown. drag-out fish fighting with Oregon's giant sturgeon or his "run and gun" for New Mexico quail...the hot-footed, mesquite dodging missiles of the southwest. With adventure's featuring Boston's harbor stripers, Missouri whitetail, Alaskan caribou and black bear, Iowa turkey, Colorado elk, and African wildebeest, there's something for every sportsman or woman.

Inspired by the legacy of Theodore Roosevelt, TRCP's Life In The Openexplores today's pressing fish and wildlife conservation issues while taking you to some of the best hunting and fishing destinations accessible to hardworking American sportsmen, including some of T.R.'s old hunting grounds.

Watch TRCP's Life in the Open exclusively on VERSUS, Friday's at 7pm (ET) with encore airings each Sunday morning at 10:30am (ET).

TRCP's Life in the Open is sponsored in part by labor unions and contractor associations including: IBEW, IAFF, UA, IAMAW, SMWIA, IUPAT, BAC, NECA, MCAA.

Traveling Trials

Simon, Francis F.

I read in the Letters to the Editor about two brothers who were happy with their retirement; good for them. However, they are brothers who "traveled across our great nation, worked in many great locals and states." They may have a different look on this. For instance, before the money followed the man, and this was a mess at first, lots of mistakes were made and brothers lost out. But many brothers fatten up the coffers of the locals they worked in, and ended up with nothing for themselves, or very little. So good for the brothers who made out in their retirement and are happy, but they should recall the ones who didn't drive 85 miles for eight years, one-way.

Report of Independent Auditors

TO THE INTERNATIONAL EXECUTIVE COUNCIL OF THE CALIBRE INTERNATIONAL BROTHERHOOD OF ELECTRICAL WORKERS

We have audited the accompanying consolidated statements of financial position of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and subsidiaries (collectively the "International Union") as of June 30, 2007 and 2006, and the related consolidated statements of activities and of cash flows for the years then ended. These financial statements are the responsibility of the International Union's management. Our responsibility is to express an opinion on these financial statements based on our audits.

We conducted our audits in accordance with auditing standards generally accepted in the United States of America. Those standards require that we plan and perform an audit to obtain reasonable assurance about whether the financial statements are free of material misstatement. An audit includes examining, on a test basis, evidence supporting the amounts and disclosures in the financial statements. An audit also includes assessing the accounting principles used and significant estimates made by the International Union's management, as well as evaluating the overall financial statement presentation. We believe that our audits provide a reasonable basis for our opinion.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly, in all material respects, the consolidated financial position of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers and subsidiaries as of June 30, 2007 and 2006, and the consolidated changes in their net assets and their consolidated cash flows for the years then ended, in conformity with accounting principles generally accepted in the United States of America.

As discussed in Notes 5 and 6 to the financial statements, the International Union changed its policy regarding recognition in the financial statements of the funded status of postretirement benefit plans. This change resulted from the adoption of Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 158, Employers' Accounting for Defined Pension and Other Postretirement Plans (SFAS 158).

INTERNATIONAL BROTHERHOOD OF ELECTRICAL WORKERS AND SUBSIDIARIES NOTES TO CONSOLIDATED FINANCIAL STATEMENTS

YEARS ENDED JUNE 30, 2007 AND 2006

Note 1. Summary of Significant Accounting Policies

Nature of Operations—The International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers is an international labor union established to organize all workers for the moral, economic and social advancement of their condition and status. The significant portion of the International Union's revenue comes from per capita taxes of members paid by the local unions.

Basis of Presentation—The consolidated financial statements include the accounts of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, its whollyowned subsidiary, Headquarters Holding Company, Inc., and the IBEW Headquarters Building LLC, of which the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers owns 99%. Headquarters Holding Company, Inc. held title to real estate that was sold during 2004. Headquarters Holding Company, Inc. had no activity during the years ended June 30, 2007 and 2006. The IBEW Headquarters Building LLC also holds title to real estate, an office building that was acquired in June 2004, which beginning late-January 2005 serves as the new headquarters for the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. All inter-organization accounts and transactions have been eliminated in consolidation. The International Union maintains an appropriated fund designation for internal tracking of postretirement benefits.

Method of Accounting—The financial statements have been prepared using the accrual basis of accounting in accordance with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles.

Investments—Generally, investments are carried at fair value. Changes in fair value of investments are recognized as unrealized gains and losses. For the purpose of recording realized gains or losses the average cost method is used. Purchases and sales are recorded on a trade-date basis. The purchases and sales pending settlement are recorded as either assets or liabilities in the consolidated statement of financial position. Pending sales represent amounts due from brokers while pending purchases represent amounts due to brokers for trades not settled. All pending transactions at June 30, 2007 and 2006 settled in July 2007 and July 2006, respectively.

Property and Equipment—Building, improvements, furniture and equipment are carried at cost. Major additions are capitalized. Replacements, maintenance and repairs which do not improve or extend the lives of the respective assets are expensed currently. Depreciation is computed using the straight-line method over the estimated useful lives of the related assets, which are as follows:

Building and improvements 10-40 years

Tenant improvements Life of respective lease

Furniture and equipment 2-10 years

Accounts Receivable—Trade accounts receivable are reported net of an allowance for expected losses. Based on management's evaluation of receivables, the allowance account has a zero balance at June 30, 2007 and 2006.

Inventory—The International Union maintains an inventory of supplies for use and for resale to local unions and individual members. Inventory is stated at average inventory cost which approximates the selling price of items held.

Canadian Exchange—The International Union maintains assets and liabilities in Canada as well as the United States. It is the intent of the International Union to receive and expend Canadian dollars in Canada and not, on a regular basis, convert them to U.S. dollars. For financial statement purposes all assets and liabilities are expressed in U.S. dollar equivalents.

Canadian dollars included in the consolidated statement of financial position are translated at the appropriate year-end exchange rates. Canadian dollars included in the consolidated statement of activities are translated at the average exchange rates for the year. Unrealized increases and decreases due to fluctuations in exchange rates are included in "Currency translation adjustment" in the consolidated statement of activities.

Statement of Cash Flows—For purposes of the consolidated statement of cash flows, cash is considered to be amounts on hand and in demand deposit bank accounts subject to immediate withdrawal. Certain amounts previously reported for 2006 have been reclassified to conform with the 2007 presentation.

Estimates—The preparation of financial statements in conformity with U.S. generally accepted accounting principles requires management to make estimates and assumptions that affect certain reported amounts and disclosures. Actual results could differ from those estimates.

Note 2. Tax Status

The Internal Revenue Service has advised that the International Union qualifies under Section 501(c)(5) of the Internal Revenue Code and is, therefore, not subject to tax under present income tax laws. Headquarters Holding Company, Inc. and IBEW Headquarters Building, LLC are not taxpaying entities for federal income tax purposes, and thus no income tax expense or deferred tax asset has been reported in the financial statements. Income of the Companies is taxed to the members in their respective returns.

Note 3. Investments

The following methods and assumptions were used to estimate the fair value of each class of financial instruments which are listed below. For short-term cash investments, the cost approximates fair value because of the short maturity of the investments. Generally, government and government agency obligations, corporate bonds and notes, stocks, the AFL-CIO Housing Investment Trust, and mutual funds fair values are estimated using quoted market prices. For mortgage loans, the fair value is determined based on the discounted present value of future cash flows using the current quoted yields of similar securities.

Due to the lack of a quoted market price, the capital stock of Union Labor Life Insurance Company (ULLICO) included in the stocks category and the State of Israel bond included in the government and government agency obligations category are carried at cost. The ULLICO stock is valued at a cost of $14,323,500 at both June 30, 2007 and 2006, and the State of Israel bond at a cost of $2,000,000 at both June 30, 2007 and 2006.

Note 4. Securities Lending Program

The International Union has entered into an agreement with the bank that acts as custodian for the International Union's investments which authorizes the bank to lend securities held in the International Union's accounts to third parties.

The International Union receives 70% of the net revenue derived from the securities lending activities, and the bank receives the remainder of the net revenue. "Interest" reported in the consolidated statements of activities includes $102,629 and $165,716 earned by the International Union during the years ended June 30, 2007 and 2006, respectively, in connection with the securities lending program.

Under this program, the bank must obtain collateral from the borrower in the form of cash, letters of credit issued by an entity other than the borrower, or acceptable securities. Both the collateral and the securities loaned are marked-to-market on a daily basis so that all loaned securities are fully collateralized at all times. In the event that the loaned securities are not returned by the borrower, the bank will, at its own expense, either replace the loaned securities or, if unable to purchase those securities on the open market, credit the International Union's accounts with cash equal to the fair value of the loaned securities

The International Union's securities lending activities are collateralized as described above, and the terms of the securities lending agreement with the custodial bank require the bank to comply with government rules and regulations related to the lending of securities; however, the securities lending program involves both market and credit risk. In this context, market risk refers to the possibility that the borrower of securities will be unable to collateralize the loan upon a sudden material change in the fair value of the loaned securities or the collateral, or that the bank's investment of cash collateral received from the borrowers of the International Union's securities may be subject to unfavorable market fluctuations. Credit risk refers to the possibility that counterparties involved in the securities lending program may fail to perform in accordance with the terms of their contracts. To date, the International Union has experienced no losses in connection with the securities lending program. At June 30, 2007 and 2006, the fair value of the collateral held was as follows:

	2007	2006
Cash	$ 22,160,851	$ 28,206,108
Securities	6,353,703	2,223,019
Total	$ 28,514,554	$ 30,429,127

The fair value of securities loaned was $27,543,589 and $29,318,848, respectively. In accordance with Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 140 the value of the cash collateral held and a corresponding liability to return the collateral have been reported in the accompanying statements of financial position.

Note 5. Pension Plans

The International Union maintains two defined benefit pension plans to cover all of its employees. There are no employee contributions and all employer contributions to the plans are based on actuarial costs as calculated by the actuary. The actuarial valuations are based on the projected benefit method with aggregate level normal cost and frozen initial liability.

During the year ended June 30, 2007, the International Union adopted Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 158, Employers' Accounting for Defined Pension and Other Postretirement Plans (SFAS 158) which requires an employer to recognize the overfunded or underfunded status of a defined benefit postretirement plan as an asset of liability in its statement of financial position and in changes in unrestricted net assets. This adoption resulted in a increase in net assets of approximately $16.3 million related to the defined benefit pension plans.

The annual measurement date is June 30. The net periodic pension cost for the plans for the years ended June 30, 2007 and 2006 is summarized as follows:

	2007	2006
Service cost	$ 8,506,326	$ 8,966,075
Interest cost	15,622,454	15,779,972
Expected return on plan assets	(17,783,919)	(16,160,720)
Net amortization and deferral	2,444,157	3,107,427
Net periodic pension cost	$ 8,789,018	$ 11,692,754

The net periodic pension cost is based on the following weighted-average assumptions at the beginning of the year:

	2007	2006
Discount rate	6.00%	5.50%
Average rate of compensation increase	5.00%	5.00%
Expected long-term rate of return on plan assets	7.00%	7.00%

The plans' obligations and funded status as of June 30, 2007 and 2006 are summarized as follows:

	2007	2006
Accumulated benefit obligation	$ 265,543,285	$ 257,018,859
Fair value of plan assets	$ 302,431,128	$ 267,110,238
Projected benefit obligation	284,503,019	285,578,900
Excess (deficiency) of plan assets over projected benefit obligation	17,928,109	(18,468,662)
Unrecognized prior service cost	-	10,488,387
Unrecognized net actuarial loss		6,490,455
Net prepaid (accrued) benefit cost	$17,928,109	$(1,489,820)

Benefit obligations are based on the following weighted average assumptions at the end of the year:

	2007	2006
Discount rate	6.00%	6.00%
Average rate of compensation increase	5.00%	5.00%

Employer contributions and benefit payments for the years ended June 30, 2007 and 2006 were as follows:

	2007	2006
Employer contributions	$ 11,863,691	$24,281,154
Benefit payments	18,851,603	18,110,809

Total expected employer contributions for the year ending June 30, 2008 are $10.1 million. Total expected benefit payments for the next 10 fiscal years are as follows:

Year Ending June 30, 2008	$19,039,569
2009	19,226,797
2010	19,579,863
2011	20,005,566
2012	20,387,696
Years 2013 - 2017	110,466,475

The expected long-term rate of return on plan assets of 7% reflects the average rate of earnings expected on plan assets invested or to be invested to provide for the benefits included in the benefit obligations. The assumption has been determined by reflecting expectations regarding future rates of return for plan investments, with consideration given to the distribution of investments by asset class and historical rates of return for each individual asset class.

Total pension plan weighted-average asset allocations at June 30, 2007 and 2006, by asset category, are as follows:

Asset category
Cash and cash equivalents	6%	3%
Equity securities	68	59
Debt securities	21	22
Real estate	5	11
Other	0	5
	100%	100%

The plans' investment strategies are based on an expectation that equity securities will outperform debt securities over the long term, and that the plans should maximize investment return while minimizing investment risk through appropriate portfolio diversification. All investments are actively managed by a diversified group of professional investment managers, whose performance is routinely evaluated by a professional investment consultant. Target allocation percentages are 60% for equities, 25% for fixed income securities, 10% for real estate, and 5% for other investments (principally limited partnerships).

The International Union also contributes to a multiemployer defined benefit plan on behalf of its employees. Contributions to this plan were $614,719 and $632,779 for the years ended June 30, 2007 and 2006, respectively.

Note 6. Postretirement Benefits

In addition to providing pension benefits, the International Union provides certain health care, life insurance and legal benefits for substantially all employees who reach normal retirement age while working for the International Union.

During the year ended June 30, 2007, the International Union adopted Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 158, Employers' Accounting for Defined Pension and Other Postretirement Plans (SFAS 158) which requires an employer to recognize the overfunded or underfunded status of a defined benefit postretirement plan as an asset of liability in its statement of financial position and in changes in unrestricted net assets. This adoption resulted in a decrease in net assets of approximately $33 million related to the postretirement benefit plan.

Postretirement benefit costs for the years ended June $30,\,2007$ and 2006 include the following components:

	2007	2006
Service cost	$ 5,276,579	$ 5,512,005
Interest cost	9,319,383	8,987,884
Amortization of accumulated loss (gain)	1,788,694	4,273,727
Total postretirement benefit cost	$16,384,656	$18,773,616

The accumulated postretirement benefit obligation at June 30, 2007 and 2006 is as follows:

	2007	2006
Postretirement benefit obligation	$161,556,169	$163,703,797
Fair value of plan assets
Excess of postretirement benefit obligation over plan assets	161,556,169	163,703,797
Unrecognized net actuarial loss		(46,203,895)
Accrued postretirement benefit cost	$161,556,169	$117,499,902

The above postretirement benefit cost does not represent the actual amount paid (net of estimated Medicare Part D subsidies) of $5,268,383 and $5,174,587 for the years ended June 30, 2007 and 2006, respectively.

Weighted-average assumptions used to determine net postretirement benefit cost at beginning of year: (Continued on next page)

	2007	2006
Discount rate	5.50%	6.25%
Average rate of compensation increase	5.00%	5.00%

Weighted-average assumptions used to determine benefit obligations at end of year:

	2007	2006
Discount rate	6.00%	5.50%
Average rate of compensation increase	5.00%	5.00%

The assumed health care cost trend rates used to measure the expected cost of benefits for the year ended June 30, 2007, were assumed to increase by 10% for medical, 13% for drugs, 9% for Medicare Part D subsidy, 5% for dental/vision, 6% for Medicare Part B premiums, and 3% for legal costs. Thereafter, rates for increases in medical, drug costs and the Medicare Part D subsidy were assumed to gradually decrease until they reach 5% in 2020.

Total expected benefit payments, net of Medicare Part D subsidies, for the next 10 fiscal years are as follows:

Year Ending June 30, 2008	$6,643,959
2009	7,134,974
2010	7,731,196
2011	8,285,416
2012	8,812,017
Years 2013-2017	54,243,770

The International Union appropriated investments of $161,556,169 at June 30, 2007 to pay for future postretirement benefit costs.

Note 7. Mortgages Payable

The IBEW Headquarters Building LLC (the "Company") has two mortgages payable, $40 million to Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Company and $40 million to New York Life Insurance Company, secured by substantially all of the Company's assets. The mortgage loans bear interest at an annual rate of 5.63% and are payable in monthly installments of principal and interest totaling $529,108, and mature on July 1, 2019, at which time the remaining principal and interest amounts of $37,191,698 are due in full. Future minimum payments on the mortgage obligations are due as follows:

Year ending June 30,2008	$6,349,296
2009	6,349,296
2010	6,349,296
2011	6,349,296
2012	6,349,296
Thereafter	81,636,793
	113,383,273
Less interest portion	39,217,671
	$ 74,165,602

Note 8. Royalty Income

The International Union has entered into a multi-year License Agreement and a List Use Agreement with the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations (AFL-CIO) under which the AFL-CIO has obtained rights to use certain intangible property belonging to the International Union, including the rights to use the name, logo, trademarks and membership lists of the International Union, in exchange for specified royalty payments to be paid to the International Union by the AFL-CIO. In turn, the AFL-CIO has sub-licensed the rights to use the International Union intangible property to Household Bank Nevada, N.A., for use by the bank in connection with its marketing of credit card and certain other financial products to members of the International Union. These agreements commenced on March 1, 1997.

For the years ended June 30, 2007 and 2006 the International Union recognized as revenue $1,919,591 and $1,711,856, respectively.

Note 9. Functional Expenses

The financial statements are prepared in accordance with the provisions of Statement of Financial Accounting Standards No. 117, Financial Statements of

Not-for-Profit Organizations (Statement No. 117). Statement No. 117 establishes standards for general purpose, external financial statements of financial position, activities and cash flows. It requires that the International Union's net assets and its revenues, expenses, gains and losses be classified between unrestricted, temporarily restricted, and permanently restricted based on the existence or absence of donor imposed restrictions. For the years ended June 30, 2007 and 2006 all of the net assets and activities of the International Union were classified as unrestricted due to the nonexistence of donor imposed restrictions. Statement 117 also requires that the International Union expenses be classified on a functional basis, that is, expenses broken down into classifications that reflect the purpose (or function) of the major services and activities conducted by the International Union.

Note 10. Litigation

The International Union is a party to a number of routine lawsuits, some involving substantial amounts. In all of the cases, the complaint is filed for damages against the International Union and one or more of its affiliated local unions. The General Counsel is of the opinion that these cases should be resolved without a material adverse effect on the financial condition of the International Union.

Note 11. Related Party Transactions

The IBEW provides certain administrative services to the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers' Pension Benefit Fund (Fund), for which the International Union is reimbursed. These services include salaries and benefits, rent, computer systems, and other administrative services. The amount reimbursed totaled $2,500,000 and $2,080,000, for the years ended June 30, 2007 and 2006, respectively.

In addition, the International Union collects and remits contributions received on behalf of the Fund from members.

The International Union also pays administrative services on behalf of the Pension Plan for the International Officers, Representatives and Assistants of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, and the Pension Plan for Office Employees of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers. The administrative services include auditing, legal and actuarial services. The costs of the administrative services are not readily determinable.

Note 12. Operating Leases

The International Union, through its wholly-owned subsidiary IBEW Headquarters Building, LLC, has entered into agreements to lease space in its building. These leases which expire at various dates through 2025 contain renewal options. Future minimum rental payments, including the lease payments due from the International Union totaling $23,890,830, due under these agreements over the next five fiscal years is as follows:

Year ending June 30, 2008	$ 11,121,491
2009	11,432,506
2010	11,671,571
2011	11,865,131
2012	11,901,664

For Ethan and All of Our Families...

John McNerney, a member of the Elevator Constructors, recently learned his grandson, Ethan, has type 1 diabetes. Over the years, John has gone to bat for millions living with this devastating disease, but now it's personal.

"The unions have really changed the paradigm of diabetes research; they have not only made a national, but an international impact on progress in this disease."

-ROBERT A. PEARLMAN, PRESIDENT AND CEO,
DIABETES RESEARCH INSTITUTE FOUNDATION

Like John, the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers has also stepped to the plate by supporting DAD's Day (Dollars Against Diabetes) for the past 20 years. We've never been closer to a cure, but more work needs to be done.

To commemorate the 21st anniversary of DAD's Day, we are asking each union member to donate $21.00 so we can find a cure even faster. Your generous donation will continue to fund the groundbreaking work underway at the Diabetes Research Institute, the best hope for a cure. Please do your part to help cure diabetes – for all of our families.

All these vehicles are made in the United States or Canada by members of the United Auto Workers (UAW), Canadian Auto Workers (CAW) or International Union of Electrical Workers-Communications Workers of America (IUE).

Because of the integration of U.S. and Canadian vehicle production, all these vehicles include significant UAW-made content and support the jobs of UAW members. However, those marked with an asterisk (*) are sourced from the United States and another country. When purchasing one of these models, check the Vehicle Identification Number (VIN). A VIN beginning with "1", "4" or "5" identifies a U.S.-made vehicle; "2" identifies a Canadian-made vehicle.

Not all vehicles made in the United States or Canada are built by union-represented workers. The Toyota Corolla, for example, is made in the United States by UAW members, but the Canadian model is made in a nonunion plant and other models are imported from a third country.

*Vehicles marked with an asterisk are produced in more than one country, but all models made in the United States are assembled by UAW members.
